The wedding of Miss Bessie Lawoes and Doctor George Goria, Jr., took place last Wednesday evening in the presence of family relatives, and a few friends, including a bevy of pretty girls, comprising the Literary Club, of which the bride is a member.

The rooms were simply decorated with paims and cut flowers. The bridal chorus from "The Rose Maiden," was sung with fine effect by Miss Gertrude Greene, after which, to the strains of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," the bride and bridegroom entered the parlors and stood before the aged father of the bridegroom, who married them with the simple service of the Presbyterian Church.

After congratulations, and an informal reception the bride retired to don her travelling dress, after which, amid showers of rice, and the good wishes of their friends, the happy pair left for their honeymon tour.

The bride received many pretty gifts of Chicago and after a few days' there will take a lake trip, returning to St. Louis about July 15.

The following article from the Boston Herald last Sunday will be of interest to graduates of women's colleges, and particularly alumnae of Smith:

"The play presented by the seniors of Smith College on June 13 and 14 was "Romeo and Juliet. this making the eighth in the cycle of Shakespearlan plays. Midsummer Night's Dream, "As You Like It," Merchant of Venice. "Much Ado About Nothing, "Tweifth Night," A Winter's Tale' and "The Taming of the Shrew—each has helped yearly to contribute to the enthusiasm which the friends of Smith College feel for the work which is done in the department of dramatic expression, and this year's play, although it ventured into an untried field, that of tragedy, adds one more success to the list.

"As Juliet, Miss Platt of Chicago was a charming and winsome girl, in the first scene, and after the potion scene she expressed the womanliness of the character with a simple dignity which was moving. "Miss Altheimer in voice and make-up suggested the imaginative Romeo, which is so difficult a part, and one rarely so well played by professionals.

"Mercutio and the nurse, while neither fulfilled the conventional conception of these parts, gave a distinctly individual and artistic flavor to the performance. Mercutio's Queen Mab speech had all the humor and fire of that popular stage character, with a poetic interpretation of the lines which is more often lacking. The nurse was especially good in the scenes with Peter, the servant.

she showed in the scenes with Peter, the servant.

"If there were time one would like to go through the list of performers in the cast and roles—there were ninety-seven—and commend each for the care and enfhusiasm which she put into her part. Suffice it to say that the whole performance was worthy of the enthusiastic praise which has been bestowed upon it.

"The entr'acte music was furnished by a local orchestra. This was taken from Edward German's "Romeo and Juliet," while the Claude Fisher Quartet of Boston performed the incidental music from Geunod's opera.
